Few families have had more traditional stories of their members than the VIVION FAMILY. Some of these traditions are provable in part, but some have not beenfound susceptible of any proof as yet discovered by this compiler.

It has been claimed by many that John Vivion was the first of his family to come to America. Others are equally positive that John's father came to Virginia and that John was but one of four sons who came early to Virginia.

In setting out this compilation, the latter theory has been tentatively accepted, and the family tabulated accordingly. It should be understood, however, that the compiler has no information of a documentary nature connecting John Vivion with his purported father, Thomas, or his alleged brothers, William, Joel, and Robert.

One descendant claims John's father was Charles Vivion, and his grandfather Sir Richard Vivion, but the compiler has found no satisfactory evidence of this alleged fact.

It is to be noted that a Christian Vivion was listed as a stockholder in the London Company, February 3, 1622. His interest was only a fraction of a share purchased from Francis Carter. (Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Volume 4, Page 309)

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY

The family in Europe is almost as ancient as the History of Europe.

A Roman official during the Reign of Nero bore the name of Vivion, and English biographers of the family assert it is one of the few families of modern England tracing its origin to and bearing a family name brought into England with the Roman Conquerors.

On the other hand, the name has long been prominent in France, and there is strong support for the belief of many that one branch of the family came into England with William the Conqueror. (Pedigree of Family of VIVION of Cornwall.)

Be that as it may, it may be stated without equivocation that the family has long been an honored one in England, prominent in its military and political history.

The name is found spelled:

VIVION, VIVIAN, VIVYAN, and VIVYAN with one branch in the United States as BIVIN.

VIVION FAMILY OF VIRGINIA

(1) THOMAS VIVION, born _____; died _____, 1670. He is said to have been a general in the English Army and to have served with honor before age caused his retirement. (Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Volume 2, Pages 217-218)

The claim is made that he was the Thomas Vivion who died in Isle of Wight County, Virginia, in 1670, and that his inventory was returned there in that year.

In the English Vivion Genealogies, and more particularly in the Cornwall families, are several Thomas Vivions whose period of life might well account for this man.

His wife was said to have been MARY _____ who was imported by Robert West of Charles City County, Virginia, in 1652.

Thomas Vivion had:

* 2. JOHL VIVION, born B 1620; died _____.
* 3. WILLIAM VIVION, born ___; died _____1736.
* 4. JOHN VIVION, born _____; died _____1704.
* 5. ROBERT VIVION, born ____; died _____.

Nos. 6 to 10 reserved.

(2) JOEL VIVION, born C 1620; died _____. The only information on this man is that contained in the Virginia Land Office in Patent Book 1, Page 597, under which he obtained 50 acres September 21, 1638, for transporting John Greenfield.

This land was at Martin's Hundred, James City County, Virginia, and adjoined the land of a Thomas Smith. Note that the Smith Family long remains closely connected with the Vivion Family. (William and Mary Quarterly, First Series, Volume 8, Page 71)

Joel Vivion married _____ _____.

They had:

Nos. 11 to 19 reserved.

(3) WILLIAM VIVION, born _____; died _____, 1726. We identify this man as the William Vivion who died in Northumberland County, Va., in 1726. His inventory was returned the same year.

He married _____ _____, _____.

They had:

Nos. 20 to 29 reserved.

(4) JOHN VIVION, born _____; died _____, 1705. He is of record September 3, 1688, when Mrs. John Smith (Margaret) received a certificate entitling her to land for his "importation".

It is now known that he had been an inhabitant of the colony for many years prior to the date of the certificate.

Full credit should be given to Mrs. P. W. Hiden, 5600 Huntington Avenue, Newport News, Va., for her splendid work in clearing up some of the early records of the Smith-Vivion Families in Virginia. Her findings have been made available from time to time by publication in the William and Mary Quarterly and in Tyler's Quarterly.

Any biography of this man is incomplete without a brief reference to an important period of his life.

William Berkeley had been appointed the Royal Governor of the Colony of Virginia, March 19, 1660. Some two months later, May 29, 1660, Charles II was called from exile to take the throne of England.

Then began a series of events in the Colonial History of Virginia which culminated in the Bacon Rebellion which started in a minor way in 1675. Much of the story is in the family tradition, but there are certain facts which strongly support part of these traditions. This compiler does not bring these traditions into this brief history of the family as known facts, but they are merely repeated or quoted for what they may be worth to later searchers.

The following quoted article is from "Hearst's Sunday American", Atlanta, Georgia, and it was published as coming from Mrs. Harvie Jordan; July 13, 1930:

"Captain John Vivian of the Middle Plantation (Williamsburg, Va.) first came to Virginia as an emissary of Charles II of England, one hundred years before the Revolutionary War. His official mission was to inquire into and report to the King the causes of the disturbances between Governor Berkeley of Virginia, and Nathaniel Bacon, who was at that time commanding all the military forces of the Province.

"The real causes of the trouble were due to an effort on the part of Bacon to bring retribution upon the Indian tribes around Jamestown who had risen and massacred many of the whites. Berkeley sided with the Indians.

"After John Vivian's investigation of the facts he became heartily in sympathy with Colonel Bacon and the Colonists.

"Governor Berkeley's niece, Diana Cummings, was also in deep sympathy with Bacon's cause and opposed to the tyranny of her uncle.

"Tradition says that the information Vivian obtained was largely through Diana Cummings. She kept Vivian posted as to the plots that were taking place at the palace; among other things, the departure from Jamestown of a commission up the James River to "Curles Neck," Colonel Bacon's home, sent by Governor Berkeley to inform Bacon that he was ready to sign a treaty of peace and to invite him down to Jamestown to partake of a royal banquet prepared for him at the palace. This commission sent up the James River on the "Adam and Eve", a pleasure ship owned by Governor Berkeley.

"Diana Cummings, being warned of this fact, and knowing her uncle's deception, imparted the information to Captain John Vivian and requested him to ride to 'Curles Neck' and warn Bacon of the ruse. With some friends he departed at once, but before they reached their destination the "Adam and Eve", had come and gone with Colonel Bacon as its guest on what he supposed was a friendly mission.

"Captain Vivian and his friends rode rapidly back to Jamestown, gathering as they returned, colonists along the r uto, some armed with primative flintrocks, cutlasses, etc., and as the 'Adam and Eve' was drawing up to the wharf, Captain Vivian at the head of his followers, numbering 100 men advanced to receive them in a very unexpected way.

"They rescued Colonel Bacon, took possession of the ship, advanced on the Palace, captured Governor Berkeley and made his sign officially, attaching the seal of the King, Bacon's command making him Colonel in Command of all the Virginia forces.

"When Bacon's rebellion subsided, and conditions quieted down, Captain John Vivian married Diana Cummings, and settled in that portion of Virginia known as Middlesex Co.

"Their daughter Diana Vivian married Garrett Minor, and their son John Minor was the great-grandfather of the present well known Vivian Minor Fleming, historian of Fredericksburg, Virginia. Mr. Vivian M. Fleming is the authority for the above romantic story of Diana Cummings and Captain John Vivian.

"Diana Vivian had a sister Mary, who married Travers Daniel, and the name Vivian is preserved in the Daniel family as it is in the Fleming."

This compiler has no reason to question the story as written by Mrs. Jordan. She may have had access to data not available to others.

Descendants of this man will be interested in the charming novel about this man written by Hulbert Fuller, and originally published by L.C. Page & Company of Boston, under a copyright of Lasson, Wolffe and Company under the title, "Vivian of Virginia". It is now available in a special reprint edition entitled "John Vivian of Virginia".

This book takes the experiences of John Vivion and uses them as a basis for a fascinating story, in which his experiences as a special observer for King Charles II and his romance with a member of the Governor's household are drawn out in a most intriguing novel. Enough historical facts are included to give the story a colorful background with just enough fiction to make the facts readable.

This compiler has never met Mr. Fuller, nor does he know what data were available to him when the novel was written. However, we express the opinion, which seems justified by the oft repeated family traditions, that John Vivion was in the service of his King (Charles II) and that he was commissioned by him to report on the Bacon Rebellion in Virginia.

Some fictitious names have been used in the novel referred to above, but it is fairly well established that John Vivion had been in Virginia before the Bacon Rebellion and that he returned to the Colony during the time of the Rebellion,

Shortly thereafter he called upon the dashing Nathaniel Bacon, and there began a friendship without a parallel in history. Vivion was impressed by the earnestness of Bacon whose ability as a leader of men so closely resembled another great Virginian of a later day.

When, after hardships through which few could have lived, Bacon reached the limit of his physical strength, it was John Vivion who sat with him that damp chilly night of October 18, 1676, when Bacon's indomitable soul surrendered to the Great Commander; and Vivion with a small group of faithful followers buried the great leader and forever kept the place of his burial a secret.

With the death of the leader, the forces of Berkeley soon crushed the disorganized forces formerly allied with Bacon.

With his work for the King completed, John Vivion settled in Middlesex County, Virginia. There he became a Constable and was known as Captain John Vivion. This title was presumably because of service for England as well as in the County Militia which, at that time, included practically all able bodied men aged from 16 to 60.

The only documentary evidence thus far found of this title is where his will is recorded as "Captain Vivion's Will" in the Middlesex County, Virginia, Will Book.

October 7, 1700, he signed a petition in Middlesex County, Virginia. (Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Volume 12, Page 268.)

November 23, 1687, he was included in a list of Middlesex County, Virginia, men as capable of military service. (Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Volume 8, Page 190.)

The date of his death has not been found of record in the fragmentary Register of Christ Church in Middlesex County, Va. However, it was between the date his will was made, March 14, 1705, and the date of its proof, June 4, 1705.

It is important that a copy of this will be inserted herein so that subsequent records may be traced therefrom.

TRULY RECORDED
WIL STANDARD, County Clerk.

John Vivion married Margaret Smith, daughter of John Smith and his wife, Margaret. This wife of John Smith had "imported" him prior to 1688, so it is quite probable the families were friends of long standing.

It is not improbable that his marriage may have been a second marriage, also that another marriage intervened between the death of his wife, Margaret, and his marriage to Christian Biscoe.

This possibility may explain the traditional wedding to DIANA CUMMINGS. It is to be noted that the name, DIANA, has frequently recurred in subsequent generations.

June 5, 1689, a deed in Middlesex County, Va., D.B. 2 is from John Smith to John Vivion and wife, Margaret, and is for 100 acres which is to go to John Vivion (31) at death of (4) John Vivion.

He married Christian Biscoe, widow, in Middlesex County, Va., February 23, 1704. She was the widow of William Biscoe, having married him in 1689. William Biscoe died in 1700. Prior to her marriage to Biscoe, Christian had married MAXMILLIAN PETTY who had been imported into Virginia by Captain Ralph Wormley about 1675. Wormley received a land certificate for this importation December 2, 1689. In the list of parties in this importation appears the name of Christian Hill, and it is believed she is the one who later married Petty, Biscoe, and John Vivion, respectively.

(4) John Vivion had:

* 30. CHARLES VIVION, born _____; died _____.
* 31. JOHN VIVION, born 8/28/1681; died _____, 1722.
* 32. MARGARET VIVION, born 4/2/1684; died _____, 1750.
* 33. DIANA VIVION, born _____; died 4/16/1718.
* 34. THOMAS VIVION, born _____; died _____, 1761.

Nos. 35 to 39 reserved.

(5) ROBERT VIVION, born _____; died C 1652.

Little is known of this man except the brief reference to him in the old Lancaster County, Va., Order Book dated October 6, 1652. It is therein ordered that the estate of Robert Vivion be administered by CLEMENT THUSH "according to his (Vivion's) will". This is a bit unusual because a will would have called for an "Executor". The granting of a letter of administration implies that Robert Vivion died intestate.

He married _____.

They had:

Nos. 40 to 129 reserved.

- 30 -

(30) CHARLES VIVION, born _____; died _____. We have no further record of this man, but make reservation for possible later descendants. It would be interesting to know why his father cut him off with 20 shillings and what his future history was.

His will was made in 1720 and proved in Middlesex County, Va., July 3, 1722. His property included a parcel of books.

He was the sheriff of Middlesex County, Va., in 1714, and, in the same year, served as a Justice. (Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, Volume 2, Page 8.)

She married James Daniel, January 27, 1704.

They had:

She married GARRETT MINOR IN Middlesex County, Va., October 17, 1706. She died April 16, 1718, and was buried April 18, 1718. This is recorded in Christ Church Register in Middlesex County, Va.

Descendants of this family have been prominent in Virginia through all the years.

She is reputed to have been given the name of Diana after Diana Cummings, niece of Governor Berkeley.

Nos. 160 to 169 reserved.

- 34 -

(34) THOMAS VIVION, born _____; died _____, 1761. He appears to have been married three times as follows:

I. FRANCES THACKER, January 2, 1717; died August 16, 1724; buried 8/21/1724.
II. MARY _____, _____.
III. JANE _____, _____.

From his first wife he obtained land in King George County, Va. She was a sister of Elizabeth Thacker who married his brother (31) John.

November 6, 1728, he acquired land from Elizabeth Smith, wife of Nicholas Smith. This was land lying next to his King & Queen County land and had been deeded to Nicholas Smith by Elizabeth Vivion (wife of 31) (W.B. 18, Pages 373-375.)

Thomas was a Justice, 6/14/1718, and a Sheriff, 10/24/1718, in King George County, Va., and left many records in Orange, Stafford, and Westmoreland Counties, Va. In the biography of one descendant, he is styled "Lord Thomas Vivion". (Virkus 3)

He died and left a will in Westmoreland County, Va., made September 10, 1760; proved April 28, 1761.

Nos. 177 to 179 reserved.

- 141 -

(141) JOHN VIVION, born 8/10/1714; died C 1781. He married JANE SMITH in Middlesex County, Virginia, in 1735. The banns were published August 12, 1735. She was born August 12, 1715; baptised September 25, 1715; daughter of John and Ann Smith who had married November 24, 1714.

Ann, in turn, was the daughter of Thomas Smith and Ann Briscoe, while her husband, John Smith, was her cousin and a son of Lieutenant John Smith and Jane Cocke, and was born 2/23/1690.

Jane (Smith) Vivion died before 1780.

He then married _____. She survived him.

(141) John Vivion moved from Middlesex County, Va., to Orange County, Virginia.

Some compilers claim (141) John Vivion was the one who led the colony from Orange County, Va., to Kentucky and that he was a Colonel in the Revolutionary War. This compiler doubts this and believes he was not the one, but that it was his son (187) John Vivion.

One record which seems to justify this deduction is the deed of partition executed by heirs of (141) John Vivion in Orange County, Va.

This is considered of such importance that it is here set out in full:

Teste James Taylor C.O.C.

As further proof supporting the deduction that (141) John Vivion stayed in Virginia, attention is called to these facts of record:

1. In Orange County, Va., Will Book 3, Page 301, January 27, 1794, is a report of the administration of the estate of (141) John Vivion made by William Quarles, his son-in-law and administrator. This account dated from November 12, 1783.

2. The same Court (W.B. 3, Page 303) ordered John Alcock, Nathaniel Mills and Samuel Sales to settle the estate. This was reported January 2, 1794. Nathaniel Mills was in Hanover County, Va., in 1782.

3. In Orange County, Va., W. B. 4, Page 105, July 23, 1804, is a further report on the settlement of the estate of (141) John Vivion. This was made by Ralph Quarles on behalf of William Quarles, deceased. The report was accepted and recorded.

4. These reports show that Mrs. Vivion, evidently the widow, was boarding with her son-in-law, William Ferguson, who resided in Spotsylvania. They were paid 12 pounds per year for this board.

5. In the old tax records in Richmond beginning for the year 1782, John Vivion's personal property listing appears only for the year 1782. In that year he reported 1 adult male white, 19 slaves, 4 cattle, and 13 horses. The fact that his name is not shown thereafter implies that he died in 1782 or 1783 and that his widow thereupon moved to Spotsylvania County to live with her son-in-law, William Ferguson.

6. In these same tax records on the land listings, the name of John Vivion continues from 1782, the first year of record, when he is listed with 500 acres, until 1791, its final listing before the recording of the Deed of Partition set out above. Land, unlike personal property, would continue to be listed in the name of the owner until it was transferred by some legal procedure.

(187) JOHN VIVION, born _____, 1736; died B 1791.

There is much confusion between this man and his father, (141) John Vivion. This is because of the misinterpretation of the deed of partition of record in Orange County, Va., Deed Book 10, Page 281. Compilers generally have construed this to include a list of John Vivion's children, but this compiler does not so construe it.

It seems clear enough that, although the will does name the heirs of (141) John Vivion, it so happened that his son, John, the one who moved to Kentucky, had died before this date, so that his sons had to be named so as to account for their part of their grandfather's estate.

(187) John Vivion's will was made in 1789, but not proved until 1805 in Fayette County, Kentucky.

He married MARTHA GHOLSON, _____. She was the daughter of John Gholson and Esther Cooke and the granddaughter of Anthony Gholson and wife, Jane.

This compiler believes this man is the one largely, if not wholly, responsible for the VIVION movement from Virginia to Kentucky; also, that he was commonly termed "Colonel" Vivion, although he has not yet found any acceptable proof to show this title was other than an honorary one.

(187) John Vivion and his wife, Martha, deeded 270 acres on the North Anna, North Fork, to Vivion Daniel, his brother-in-law, November 14, 1780. The consideration shown was $8,000.00. This deed is recorded in Orange County, Va., Deed Book 17, Page 436.
